Sir,

I, Christopher Whitehouse, declare and state as follows:

I am a botanist, and my educational and professional experience is presented in the curriculum vitae attached hereto.

The Royal Horticultural Society was founded originally under the title The Horticultural Society of London. One of the aims of the Society is to collect information about plants in cultivation, primarily in Britain, and to encourage the improvement of horticultural practice. The Society is today the International Registration Authority for more categories of plants than any other organization throughout the world. The libraries of the Society are part of the Lindley

In re of Appln. No. 10/614,447

Library, the world's finest horticultural library. The Society publishes part of its Horticultural Database as the RHS Plant Finder, including more than 65,000 plants.

The inventors of the above mentioned plant patent application contacted me to clarify the use of the name "Honey Gold" in connection with pineapple varieties. I attest of my own personal knowledge that all said below is true and accurate.

My attempts at tracing the origin of the reference to pineapple 'Honey Gold' in the New Royal Horticultural Society Dictionary of Gardening have failed. Having checked the indices, the name does not appear to have been cited in any of our previous journals and so it is unlikely that it is an old cultivar. Neither does it appear on our Horticultural Database, which means that it has not been offered for sale by any nursery that has submitted its lists of plants to the RHS Plant Finder since 1987.

The undersigned declares further that all statements made herein of my own knowledge are true and that all statements made on information and belief are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like so made are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title 18 of the United States Code and that such willful false statements may jeopardize the validity of the application or any patent issued thereon.

Sir,

I, Kenneth G. Rohrbach, declare and state as follows:

I am a plant pathologist, and my educational and professional experience is presented in the curriculum vitae attached hereto. I am a co-editor of the recently published book Bartholomew, D.P., Paull, R.E. and Rohrbach, K.G (2003), The Pineapple. Botany, Production and Uses, CABI Publishing. I have 45 publications about topics related to pineapple diseases and culture and I have participated in 4 international conferences related to pineapple cultivation. I have been a member of the American Phytopathological Society since 1963

The inventors of the above mentioned plant patent application contacted me to clarify the use of the name "Honey Gold" in connection with pineapple varieties. I attest of my own personal knowledge that all said below is true and accurate.

Since Christopher Columbus discovered pineapple its cultivation has fascinated the Europeans. Pineapple was introduced and cultivated in greenhouse, especially in the Netherlands, England and France during the 18th century. As pineapple cultivation in European greenhouses expanded during the 18th and 19th centuries, many varieties were imported, mostly from the Antilles. During this time many new pineapple variety names were created. My best understanding regarding the reference in the Royal Horticultural Society dictionary to variety 'Honey Gold' is that it most probably refers to a cultivar that was used by hobbyists for greenhouse cultivation in England sometime during 18th and 19th centuries. Because, the description of the new varieties was very rudimentary and not based on current botanical nomenclature there is virtually no chance of determining which current variety of pineapple might be the same as the 'Honey Gold' cited in the Royal Horticultural Society dictionary.

In the capacity I have as having researched pineapple cultivation now for more than 35 years I attest that I have never heard of pineapple variety named 'Honey Gold' and I do not know of any commercial variety anywhere in the world with the name 'Honey Gold'.

The undersigned declares further that all statements made herein of my own knowledge are true and that all statements made on information and belief are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like so made are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title 18 of the United States Code and that such willful false statements may jeopardize the validity of the application or any patent issued thereon.

Professional Work Experience:

1940-58 Raised on a dairy farm with small fruit acreage, Ashland, Ohio.

1958-62 Greenhouse laborer, Dept. of Hort., Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.
Supervisor-- Dr. E. K. Alban.

1962-64 Research Fellow, Univ. of Idaho, Moscow, Major Professor Dr. A. W. Helton. Worked on the chemical control of Cytospora canker of stone fruits using systemic chemicals. Thesis title: "In Vitro Effects of Fifty Pesticidal Substances on an Isolate of Cytospora cincta from Italian Prune".

1964-67 Research assistant, Colorado State University, Ft. Collins Supervisor-Dr. N. S. Luepschen (Major Professor). Biology of the Cytospora peach canker fungus. Dissertation title: "Spore Germination of Cytospora leucostoma. Part I. Environmental and Carbohydrate Requirements. Part II. Carbohydrate Availability in Peach Tree Bark".

1967-70 Plant Pathologist, Dole Co., Honolulu, Hawaii. Worked on pineapple and macadamia disease control, both separately and in cooperation with the Pineapple Research Institute of Hawaii and the University of Hawaii. Developed technology for use of captafol for Phytophthora control on pineapple.

1970-73 Plant Pathologist and Pathology Department Head, Pineapple Research Institute of Hawaii, Wahiawa, Hawaii. Worked on both basic and applied pineapple disease control with major emphasis on fruit diseases. Worked on etiology of Penicillium and Fusarium induced pineapple fruit diseases and pink and marbling disease of pineapple. Visited foreign pineapple operations in Honduras, Philippines, and Australia, and banana operations in Honduras and the Philippines.

1973-77 Associate Plant Pathologist, Univ. of Hawaii, Tenured 1975. Essentially the same areas of work as in the Pineapple Research Institute since program was transferred into the Univ. of Hawaii. Taught a graduate course on "Techniques in Plant Pathology".

1977-82, Plant Pathologist. Completed the basic etiology of Penicillium induced fruit diseases including the involvement of the pineapple fruit mite and control of the disease with endosulfan. Developed the performance and residue data for the use of endosulfan for fruit disease control, and, Aliette and Ridomil for Phytophthora control on pineapple. Developed the technology for the use of fruit waxes on pineapple to control internal browning and extend shelf-life. Traveled to Brazil, South Africa, Philippines, Taiwan, Thailand and Malaysia for short-term study and advising on pineapple disease problems. Developed and taught a graduate course on "Epidemiology and Disease Management" following a sabbatical at North Carolina State University. Served as Convener of Pineapple Commodity Group.

1982-85, Professor and Chairman, Department of Plant Pathology in Addition to the above activities.

1985 to 1999, Assistant Director, Hawaii Institute of Tropical Agriculture and Human Resources. Directed and coordinated the industry analysis process and program for the Governor's Agriculture Coordinating Committee (GACC) including the formation and functioning of the commodity multidisciplinary groups. Worked closely with the Assistant Director of Cooperative Education Services in the development of commodity and resource research and extension programs to address state and county needs. Worked closely with industry commodity groups, department chairs, county chairs, and project principal investigators in the development of commodity and resource oriented research and extension programs, and the implementation of these programs.

1999 to 2001, Department Chair, Department of Plant and Environmental Protection Sciences. Facilitated the merger of the entomology and plant pathology departments along with selected faculty from weed science and environmental biochemistry into a new department of Plant and Environmental Protection Sciences (PEPS). Facilitated the development of a new undergraduate program.

2002 to present, Retired

Professional Interest

My interest focuses on the facilitation, management, and implementation of multi-disciplinary, multi-institutional research and development programs and undergraduate instruction in the broad areas of crop and environmental protection within the framework of the invasive species.

Honorable Commissioner of Patents

Sir,

I, Michael I. Montembeau, declare and state as follows:

I am an information specialist for Nerac, Inc., and have been working in this capacity for the past three years. My educational and professional experience is presented in the curriculum vitae attached hereto.

Nerac, Inc. has provided information searching services for 38 years. Nerac uses proprietary and public databases of published information on journal articles, patents, trademarks, conference papers, technical, business and financial reports, manuscripts and government regulations among others.

The inventors of the above mentioned plant patent application contacted Nerac, Inc. to clarify the use of the name “Honey Gold” in connection with pineapple varieties. I attest of my own personal knowledge that all said below is true and accurate.

I created three search strategies in my attempts at finding the term ‘Honey Gold’ associated with pineapple cultivars. The first strategy looked at domestic and international trademarks, while the second and third strategies focused on Nerac’s internal technical, patent, business and news related databases.

The results of the trademark search strategy, using the strategy detailed in this affidavit, revealed that the only hits for the term ‘Honey Gold’ associated with pineapple cultivars were attributable to Del Monte. The results of this search are attached hereto.

The second strategy looked for phrase “Honey Gold”, and variations thereof associated with the term “pineapple”, and variations thereof. The search strategy along with the databases searched and the results per databases are included in Table 1, attached hereto. The results of this search returned twelve (12) total hits. A review of these hits revealed that they were either associated with Del Monte or they were not relevant. In other words, none of the hits for this search associated the term “Honey Gold” with pineapples other than those in connection with the Del Monte company.

The third strategy, was the broader of the two internal database searches and looked for phrase “Honey Gold”, and variations thereof regardless of whether it/they was/were associated with the term “pineapple”, and variations thereof. The search strategy along with the databases searched and the results per databases are included in Table 2, attached hereto. The results of this broader search returned six hundred thirty (630) total hits. A review of these hits revealed that they were either associated with Del Monte or they were not relevant. Although the search did reveal that the term, "Honey Gold" is/was associated with the cultivars of papaya, mangos, pawpaws, jackfruit, nectarines, and apples, none of the hits for this search associated the term, "Honey Gold" with pineapples other than those in connection with the Del Monte company.

Although I cannot make any assurances of the totality and sanctity of the information provided in the databases by the database providers, based on the information returned by the searches, I regard it unlikely that the name Honey Gold would be in use with any pineapple cultivar in commerce during the period of time covered by the databases searched as depicted in Tables 1 and 2, other than that developed by the Del Monte company.

I further declare that all statements made herein are true to the best of my knowledge and that all statements have been made on information provided by the databases searched and are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like so made are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title 18 of the United States Code and that such willful false statements may jeopardize the validity of the application or any patent issued thereon.
